THE flowing, graceful styles of the Orient still continue to influence the fashion world, the modes for Autumn and Winter being but a reduction of the best of last season. The kimono and mandarin sleeves still reign supreme.

One of the smartest modes of the season is the over-blossom waist. Groups of tucks over the shoulders contribute to the front fulness, while the back is drawn down and fastened to a belt of the material.

Another popular style is three pretty over-blossom effects is shown, in which the skirt is cut in one piece, with the tucklets, displaying to advantage the lace blouse worn underneath.

The tiny tailor-made suit for early Autumn is showing the short walking skirt, more than any other style.

Narrow, irregular stripes in cloth and worsted cutting is the material par excellence for these suits, the material itself being used for trimming bands, decorated with stitching and buttons. The newest coat model is the cutaway, fashioned on mannish lines and made of smooth finished cloth of herringbone pattern or indistinct overplaid effects.

In a most stunning costume, recently noted, of black and white black check, the full bill-plated skirt was most stylishly combined with a cutaway coat trimmed with a wide banding of black silk braid on all the edges. For the simple, serviceable suit Scotch tweed, rough English cutting and serge are the correct thing.

The rich, heavy tulle skirts are in demand for the dressy tailor-made costumes, trimmed with strapings and bands of lace, silk brocade, matching exactly the silk. The satin finished broadcloths are exquisite this season, and come in all the delicate creasing lines. They will be much used for carriage wraps and dressy coats.

There is a suitable use of novelty brand on the new Fall coats, some of the handsome long coats being most elaborately braided. On the French imported models the braid is not put on flat, but set on edge, producing very novel and beautiful effects in combination with other dress details.

Tailored abricwaists in either white or colored woolen material, made with deep pleats attached flat and a patch pocket on each side, are considered particularly smart. Among the available waists are those of heavy linen, with turn-over collar embroidered in either red or blue.

For the dressy costume velvet is distinctly in the lead and is exquisite in its many new colorings and lively tones. The newest show the fashionable stripes and checks, and among the novelties are the hair line stripes.

As to colors, there is a harmonious blending of the rich Autumn tones that is certainly very alluring. Golden yellow is a favorite with those to whom it is becoming, and despite the fact that brown has been such a favorite for some time past it still takes the lead, and some wonderfully attractive costumes are being shown in that color. Who can resist those pretty dainty negligees that now form so important a part of the up-to-date feminine wardrobe? The materials for them are so tempting that with a good pattern it is a pleasure to fashion one's own. An unusually pretty model is here illustrated that is suitable for development in the soft woolsens as well as the wash fabrics.

Well cut and neatly finished undergarments now form an essential part of the outfit of maid, as it is now a recognized fact that much of beauty and perfect fit of the outside garment depends upon perfect fitting undergarments.

The choicest materials are fine linen, muslin, lawn, dimity and longcloth. Batiste is used for some of the daintiest and finest, while Valenciennes lace and in various ways almost suggested all other laces for trimming and are used in connection with ribbon-trimmed bodices.

Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings appears in a Smart Frock of Violet Silk.

EUROPE has been called America's play ground. And when you consider all the numbers of our four hundred who are disappointing themselves on the other side of the water, the wonder is that even at Newport so many forego it.

An early season in town is promised this year. But we are in no haste to leave dear Newport, we spend so many happy days. And after that come numerous visits to be paid. Of course, we must spend a little time in Long and a run up to the Adirondacks to see the changing Autumn foliage is not an impossibility.

So, although there may be "an end of the season" feeling in the air, in reality town is still far distant. But our wardrobe begins to show the effects of a strenuous Summer, although we all managed to look tremendously smart for the Horse Show.

As usual, this season there were plenty of frocks of all shades of violet in evidence.

Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings, who is always chic and dainty, wore one of the most charming of these. It was of violet silk of rather a pale, soft tone, and was made on a particularly good model.

It was, in effect, a jumper dress and was worn over a sheer white lingette waist, which had a high-boned collar and elbow sleeves.

The skirt was long and graceful and was held up over a perfect foundation of lace ruffles. Buffets these were of Valenciennes, real lace, and delightfully creamy in tone.

The slippers which appeared below were no less fascinating. They were extremely high-heeled affairs of white kid and the toes were ornamented with white ribbon bows.

Around the bottom of the skirt were shaped bands of the silk, each over lapsing the one beneath. The top one of these bands was slashed up here and there and caught across with white silk cord fastened on either side with white pearl buttons.

This effect was repeated higher up on the skirt. Just below the waist the skirt was ornamented on either side of the front gore with the same cord and buttons. This gave the illusion

THE EASY TO CUT AND MAKE AT HOME

BY MRS. CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.

Mrs. Frederic Havemeyer, Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings and Mrs. George Gould, a Well Gowned Trio.

A Clover New Sleeve Model with Deep Embroidered Collar

Mrs. Frederic Havemeyer's Walking Dress, a Simple One of Gray Checked Linen.

A HINT OF SOMETHING NEW IN SLEEVES.

The drooping under sleeves were of white embroidery, the shoulders the silk was caught with two large pointed pearl buttons. A tiny bow of black tulle placed just in front gave a finish to the collar.

The skirt had a suggestion of the same line as the waist in the pleats of lace which were placed down each side of the front. Two pearl buttons also ornamented the neckline.

One of the few little hats I have seen at Newport this season was worn by Mrs. Havemeyer with this gown.

It was of mousseline and lace and had fat little pink rose buds tucked to here and there. In shape it was almost a flat mushroom cap and the brim was narrow and ruffled.

Some amusing and interesting "snap shots" have arrived from friends meeting abroad.

The other day one came to me of a group taken in Holland which contained several familiar faces.

Among them Mrs. George Gould's face looked out smiling and happy.

This little photograph placed her in such a charming white frock that it may interest you to hear of it.

It was an elaborate gown and thoroughly Parisian in style. It had one or two little touches which were worthy of note. For instance, at the top of the skirt hem a tiny plaiting of pique was set in and the same little plaiting was repeated around the top of the sleeve and the belt.

The material of the gown appeared to be the white pique. It had a little rib in it which suggested that fabric.

The embroidery was combined with fine beading and was put on in an effective design on both skirt and waist. Some of the embroidery seemed to be of open-work style and a good many French knots were employed.

The waist was half vest, half jacket. For while it was worn over a lingerie blouse which appeared in front and before the short, loose sleeve, it was belted in at the waist in a style which suggested a shirt waist.

The sleeve was particularly good. It ran up on the outer side in a sharp V, edged with a deep band of embroidery and beading. This embroidery was caught across with a cord and several little crocheted balls.

The belt that Mrs. Gould wore with this dress was trimmed with rose-probably pink tulle, to give a snap of color to an all-white costume.

There is no detail of dress of more importance than sleeves. A badly constructed sleeve can mar the whole effect of an otherwise perfect gown.

We are ever on the search for something smart and new. The sleeves pictured on this page seem to me to be both.

It was the sleeve of a blue gown. The crocheted bands belted along behind the same effect on the jacket. The cord curved for up the sleeve in a rather unusual line and each belting was fastened with a button.

The hat that Mrs. Gould wore with this dress was trimmed with rose-probably pink tulle, to give a snap of color to an all-white costume.

No. 5881. Girls' Apron. Size for 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. 7½ yard size requires 2 yards of 36-inch material.

EACH year as the Autumn comes around again the problem of fitting out the little maid for school confronts the busy mother. Children's styles this season combine all that is comfortable and practical with smartness and good style.

The practical modes which also permit the unhampered grace of childhood are the ones most sought for children.

Those here pictured are quite stylish and attractive, yet very simple.

Little frocks, such as the ones shown here, are in demand just now and are exceedingly becoming to the little school girl. They all have the distinct merit of being easily constructed by the home dressmaker and are adapted to a wide range of materials.

Tailor-made tub dresses of heavy linen, plaid or duck, sharply folded by machine stitching are now worn all through the Winter by little girls of twelve or thirteen years. They are extremely smart and becoming to the average child.

The small boy's requirements are considered in the natty Russian suits that have proved such universal favorites. Little knickerbockers usually accompany these frocks made of the same material, preferably the washable fabric. A patent leather belt worn low in the front is long waited effect given just the finishing touch needed to the boyish little dress.

Among the hats for little girls the poke bonnet in felt is the most picturesque and becoming, the wide, drooping brim forming a most attractive frame for the little child's face. They are elaborately trimmed with ribbon bows or three short, nodding plumes.

Speaking of the little totto recalls just such a little maiden in a wide poke bonnet with a huge snow white "Teddy Bear" tucked under her arm. It would certainly seem as if no boy had but get appeared had so won the hearts of the children as the "Teddy Bear."

It is so soft and "round" to hug and pet, that it has almost displaced the much loved doll.

When purchased in the shops Master Brute is a very expensive little fellow, but by carefully following the directions given with the pattern can easily be made at home. It is usually made of best cloth, and may be lined with awn-lust, bran, cotton or excelsior.

The soles of the feet and inside of the hands may be made of chambray or pieces of the old kid gloves, and black beads or shoe buttons will serve nicely for eyes. The nose, mouth and claws are simulated by taking over and over stitching with heavy black thread. A more realistic appearance is given the nose by dipping the end in matted sealing wax, either black or brown.

A "Teddy Bear" made at home from this pattern will delight the children just as much as one from the shops costing many times as much.

And it can be so easily made that no child need be without this attractive toy.

DO NOT SAVE THE BEAUTIES OF ANCIENT PHILAE

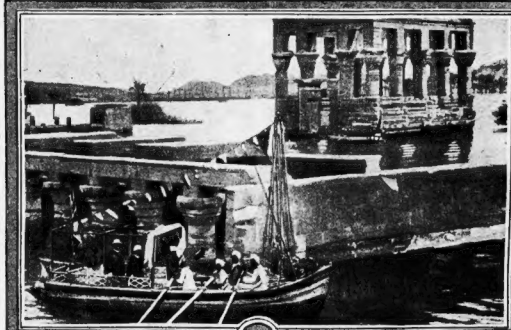

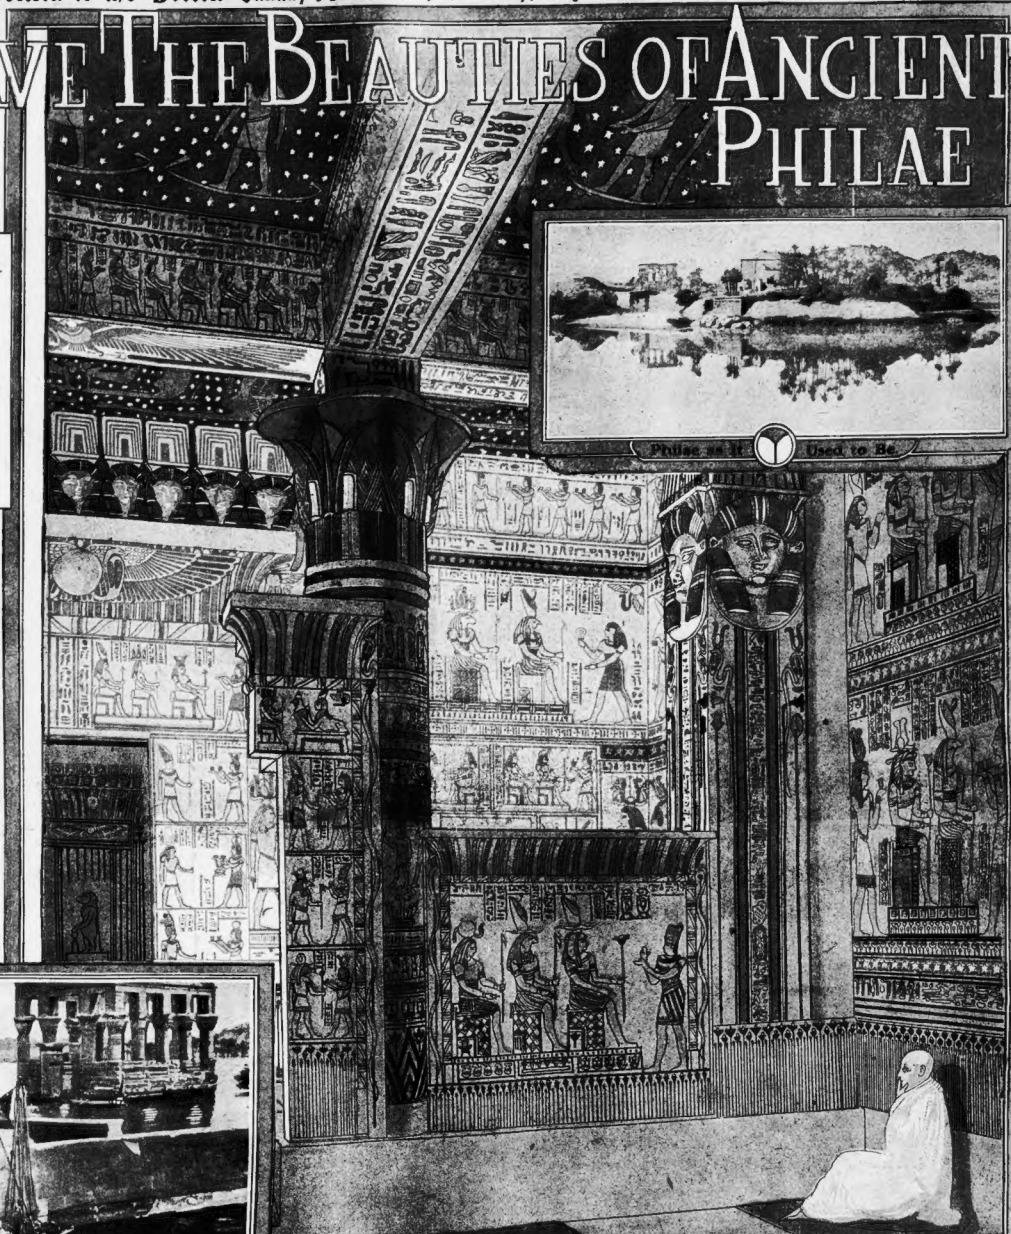

BOLD PROJECT TO PRESERVE FOR OUR CHILDREN FOREVER THE HISTORIC TEMPLES OF THE MOST PICTURESQUE SPOT IN EGYPT WHICH THE NEW ASSOUAN DAM THREATENS

THE island of Philae, which bears the most beautiful collection of ancient ruins in Egypt, was doomed to destruction by the construction of the great Assouan dam. Already the waters of the Nile have been raised so that they reach the foundations of the temples, but in a short time the level will be increased to a point where the buildings will be almost entirely covered.

The proposed destruction of one of the most remarkable groups of buildings in the world has raised so great an outcry among artists, archaeologists and the cultivated classes everywhere that an extraordinary project to save the temples has been advanced. There seems a strong probability that it will be carried out.

This project is to raise the buildings fifty feet or more above their present position. The buildings include the great Temple of Isis, the Temple of Nectanebo, the Kiosk of Trajan, the Temple of Isis Ousset, the Colonnade of the East and the Colonnade of the West.

In order to carry out this project it would be necessary to take down the temples, raise their foundations up to the desired height and then rebuild them on the platform thus formed. Each temple would stand on a vast granite pedestal, buttressed on every side. A retaining wall would also be built around the whole island. Strange to say, the island is already of a partially artificial character, as it was built up in the time of the Ptolemites from a low-lying patch of mud and rocks. The labor involved in the enlargement now proposed would be enormous, but the cost would not, it is said, exceed $1,000,000, because Egyptian labor is so cheap. That amount is regarded as a trifle in comparison with the vast benefit conferred on Egypt by the Assouan dam, the commercial value of which has been estimated at $400,000,000, although this estimate would not be accepted by some high authorities. Sir Benjamin Baker, who designed the dam, suggested the raising of Philae above high-water level, and therefore plied his reputation to the feasibility of the plan.

Philae has been called the gem of the Nile. It has more charm than the earlier groups of Egyptian ruins. Massive, almost brutal strength is the salient characteristic of the temples of the lower Nile. But those of Philae were built under the Greek rulers of Egypt and in later Roman Imperial days when the Greek was still the chief artist-craftsman of the land. Here the architect was not content to make mere titanic bulk and strength the leading feature of his work, as in the towered gateways and pillared halls of Karnak. But he brought to his task the sense of balanced proportion and added a charm of detail which the early builders of Egypt did not understand.

When the construction of the Assouan dam was first proposed and the plans showed a barrier of such a height that the whole of Philae would be buried under the waters, the protests were so loud that they led to some modification. At the head of the movement against destroying the ruins was the late Lord Leighton, who declared that "any tampering with Philae would be a lasting blot on the British occupation of Egypt."

The original proposal had been that the dam should be raised to the height of 237 feet above the low-water level at the foot of the first catenail. The engineers and promoters of the scheme then consented to reduce this height to 247 feet. In this modification, instead of the temples being drowned in the flood, the highest level of the reservoir, they said, would inundate only part of the island. Even this level, however, has done great damage through the action of the flood on the foundations of the temples. For five months of the year, when the water level is highest, the great Temple of Isis and the beautiful roofless, unfinished temple known as the "Kiosk" or "Pharaoh's Bed," are partly inundated, and when the water falls the lower part of their walls and pillars is covered with a coating of filthy green mud. The foundations are already injured, and here and there ugly wooden props have been put in. And now the engineers and financiers have asked to be allowed to take back part of what they conceded a few years ago. They then cut forty feet off their dam. The Government has now agreed to their adding half of this to the existing barrier. It is to be raised twenty feet, and for a great part of the year Philae will be under water, with only the upper parts of its towered gateways rising above the surface of the water, unless the colossal project of raising the whole collection of buildings far out of danger be carried out.

Men who wish to make an impression at business will wear to a great extent what are called by tailors "week suits," that is suits having a cutaway waistcoat. These suits look well with the check coat. The coat will be cut rather full in front, with three or four buttons, and the collar will be of moderate length, not too high, and the lapels will be of moderate width. The opening at the back will be cut rather low, showing a generous amount of necktie. Double-breasted waistcoats are good form for men who are not afraid of a little show. They are not so much worn as the single-breasted ones, but they are not so much worn as the single-breasted ones.

It is always wise to order two pairs of trousers with suits of check and variegated patterns. The life of a coat is with most suits are also much worn. It must be remembered, however, that the pleated trousers are much easier to obtain in France than in America, and that it is much easier to have them well tailored there than here. Trousers expense is no object, it is well to avoid the pleated waist, which is also responsible for colored handkerchiefs and fancy silk waistcoats with evening dress.

The novel fashion in evening dress has been introduced by a prominent British nobleman. He has the foreparts of a waistcoat worn in the hands of his coat. These parts button and have all the appearance of a waistcoat. With this device a man puts his waistcoat on with his coat and saves the time which would be spent in putting on a second garment. This arrangement looks well on a heavily built man. After this the charge of silliness and quackery can no longer be brought against the House of Lords.

The Norfolk jacket is coming very much into fashion this autumn for country wear. It should be made of rough material, like the dark strait, plaid, or mixture pattern, or light or dark housewren, or rough tweed or cheviot. The collar and cuffs should be of a contrasting color, and the general effect should be one of comfortable homeliness. The pockets are large and necessary of the patch kind. One has put down each side of the coat in front and behind. The coat is somewhat gathered under the belt. Overcoats will be long, loose and boxy, with more sweep to the skirts and more fullness than last year. Melons and other smooth coats will always be good for the country, but rough fabric in check, plaid and striped patterns will be more suitable. The most fashionable neck patterns for the fall and winter are those which have broad stripes of two colors, arranged in a diagonal or cross pattern. The neck coat may be made of a single color, with two buttons and a low broad collar. Pleating combinations are red and black.

It is at the time when the system is still in an ordinary state to be able to throw off such attacks with the greatest ease. The recent growth of this disease is alarming the world's greatest healers and they are trying to find something to do about it. For nearly three hundred years cases of appendicitis have been reported in patients of repute, and the literature of the disease is probably greater than that of any other one affliction of the human body.

There is also the fact that the appendix is a part of the digestive system. It is a small, finger-like projection from the large intestine. It is located in the lower right quadrant of the abdomen. It is about 2 to 3 inches long and 1/2 inch in diameter. It is made of muscle and has a lining called the mucosa. It is connected to the large intestine by a narrow tube called the vermiform appendix. It is a part of the digestive system and is thought to be a remnant of a larger appendix that was once used for digestion. It is not necessary for life, but it can become inflamed and infected, leading to appendicitis. The symptoms of appendicitis include pain in the lower right abdomen, loss of appetite, nausea, and vomiting. If left untreated, it can lead to a rupture of the appendix, which can be life-threatening. Therefore, it is important to seek medical attention if you experience these symptoms.

best known physician of Wisconsin, announced that after careful experiments he believed appendicitis to be contagious, and a sort of theories have been advanced that perhaps the most unique is that of Dr. George J. Houser of New York, who, instead of postures and ice packs to reduce the inflammation or poison of the trouble, some little again with the knife, curing severe cases of the disease by manipulating the patient's muscles in such a way as to force the little sea against the focus of infection, and squeeze out the contents which had caused the inflammation.

THINK can be made fit the majority of these have been admitted to the medical community. I have been told that appendicitis is much more common in every one of my friends than that it was in my youth. I have been told that even half the people in the United States of people who are now dead 3 to 4 years in the past with a very high percentage of the population. I have been told that the efficiency of public hygiene and the care of infant life will not account for it. Why is that? Why is it that the human body is a germ-carrying organism?

When my mother heard of his death, she took me back to Labrador and there my grandfather, Djarka, received us with much tenderness. The tribe, too, took us in. My father's name was Harry Gresham. I think he came from Kent but I do not know.

When I was twelve I made my debut on the stage of Webster. I sang Caruso. I knew the story of Caruso, but I did not think I received a letter from the head of the tribe telling me I must not sing the opera. I laughed and sang it away. Then I was attacked by a man who tried to strangle me. I then ran for one of the tribes and would not tell the police of it.

I went then to London. That was the year '49. There I got found me and I found me. For long months I was between life and death and yet I have done but for M. Roger, my husband.

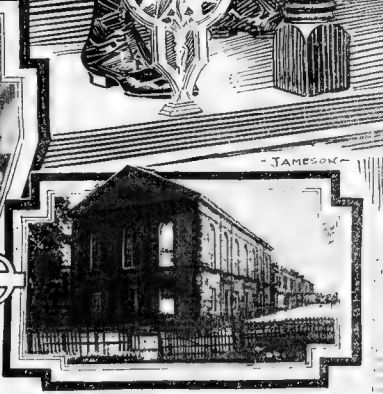

But I was still determined to live my life. One year ago I was engaged in America and sailed to Valparaiso. I landed there the 15th of August, the day of my death. Then I came back to New York.

I have heard my grandfather say that my great grandmother believed in the 47th and 48th days without counting. I am 47 years old in the 47th day of the year.

The Marksman Puzzle

by Sam Loyd.

OU clever marksman has placed nine letter blocks in a row so that they spell the word STARTLING, and she shoots away one letter of the word at a time, but leaves them so that after each time she shoots away one letter the remaining letters spell a correct word.

Can you tell us how she was able to shoot away one letter at a time and spell out nine different words?

EXAMINER PATTERNS

NO 324

THIS charming house gown is quite the simplest garment to make, and very graceful and becoming. It suggests the kimono in style, although slightly more fitted in the back. The front is laid in fine folds in the upper part and falls free from the shoulders without clinging, unless desired, so that the garment may be easily slipped on and off.

A fancifully shaped trimming band outlines the neck and front edges, the wide, short sleeves being trimmed to correspond.

The soft Japanese fabrics are the prettiest for a garment of this kind, but other materials, such as lawn, cashmere and the cotton crepes are all suitable.

For 35 inches bust measure 7 yards of 36-inch material will be required.

The patterns have been cut to sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, and will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of ten cents in silver or stamps if you will carefully fill out the accompanying coupon and mail to

PUZZLE Your Brains

Over This, and Help Win a Beautiful $450 Grand Upright Piano, and $25.00 in Prizes.

Q Place the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, in such a position in each block that, when any tier of three adjacent blocks is added, the sum will be 15; that is, the figures must be so arranged that, when any three adjacent blocks (whatsoever) be added, the sum will always be just 15.

Q Now, to get you nicely started we have already placed four figures (numbers 9, 5, 1 and 8) in the blocks above, leaving only five figures more for you to arrange.

Q This is the Great Mystic Number Puzzle which was first discovered by the erudite mathematicians.

Q If you have any trouble in arranging the figures, ask your friends to help you, for there is a Beautiful $450 Grand Upright Piano and a big Sixty-one-Dollar prize distribution awaiting all who will send in the correct, or nearest correct, as well as the cleverest solutions to this second Great Mystic Number Contest. Here is the big list of prizes themselves, which will be promptly and fairly distributed December 31, 1907, when the judges will be instructed to divide equally all prizes, should any of the contestants, through any chance, "tie."

Q The first great honor prize will be the beautiful $450 Grand Upright Piano. The first regular prize will be just $25.00 in cash; the second prize, $15.00 in cash; the third prize, $10.00 in cash; the next five prizes, $1.00 each; the next twelve prizes, 50 cents each.

IN ADDITION To all who insert enough names to make two or more series of adjacent blocks totaling 15 each, we will forward an exquisitely bound big 112-page collection of the most delightful reading obtainable—brilliantly-illustrated stories of romance, love and daring adventure. This magnificent prize collection alone, if you tried to produce it yourself, would run away up in the dollars in value. But remember, this will be sent ABSOLUTELY FREE and entirely in addition to the Piano and $25.00 in cash prizes. If you can arrange the numbers so as to secure only two adjacent lines which can be added so as to make 15 each.

Q There are no requirements to enter this contest, and you are positively instructed to forward no money with your answer.

Q We are conducting this big prize distribution for our great, new, national monthly, which has appropriated all these generous prizes so that you may participate in them absolutely free of charge. Therefore, send in your solution today—and insure yourself your share of this big prize distribution. Address

EDITORIAL SECTION

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1907.

Let Our Fleet Go to the Pacific; the Manoeuvre Is One Which No Foreign Power May Hinder and No Loyal American Citizen May Oppose.

OUR fleet should go to the Pacific coast and the support and approval of every American citizen should go with it. Japan has no more reason to object to the transfer of the fleet from our Atlantic coast to our Pacific coast than England would have to object to the transfer of the fleet from our Pacific coast to our Atlantic coast. Any objection on the part of Japan to a peaceful manoeuvre of this character would merely be another indication of the peculiar hostility of Japan—a hostility which it is only common sense to recognize and guard against. If our fleet were on the Pacific coast and were ordered transferred to the Atlantic coast and England or France should make any objection to that transfer, the whole country would realize at once the wholly unjustifiable and unreasonable character of that objection, and would resent immediately the unwarranted attempt of a foreign power to control our action in our own waters.

The United States has no hostility to Japan. It has shown friendship in many ways. But Japan does entertain a hostility to the United States, and while this is a regrettable circumstance, it is nevertheless true, and should consequently be recognized and dealt with as a fact.

There have been absolutely no disturbances on the Pacific coast of the United States sufficient to justify the attitude taken by Japan toward this country. There have been no disturbances and no demonstrations against the Japanese in this country comparable to the demonstrations in Vancouver and British Columbia, but the Japanese accept the demonstrations on British territory meekly and without protest, while they magnify the importance of the isolated instances of hostile feeling that have been shown in California until they approach a casus belli.

The United States does not want war with Japan, but it is conceivable, it is even probable, that Japan does want war with the United States. Japan has come to look upon war as a profitable enterprise. It has come out of every war with large increases of territory and large money indemnity. It finds in the United States (the richest and probably the most peaceful nation in the world to-day) an opportunity for profitable piracy.

If this is the case, war cannot be averted by cowardly concessions, but only by adequate preparation and by a calm but firm position that will express the complete confidence of our government and our people in the ultimate outcome of any contest with any foreign power. Let our own navy go to our own waters along our own coast on the Pacific without any objection from any power or any criticism by any loyal American citizen. International matters affecting the welfare of this whole country and of every citizen in it are superior to all party or political considerations, and this newspaper is prepared to support any individual and any administration engaged in upholding the honor of our citizens and in exercising our undeniable rights as a nation.

William Randolph Hearst

The Farmer's Problem Is YOURS

YOU men and women who live in cities, small towns, or villages, must not turn away from an editorial about farmers and farming under the impression that it doesn't interest YOU.

Whatever affects the welfare of the farmer affects the entire country, AND EVERY INDIVIDUAL IN IT.

Farming is the foundation of all national prosperity, just exactly as the land under your house is the foundation of that house.

The wealth of the United States in the long run consists OF THOSE THINGS THAT WE GET OUT OF THE EARTH, plus the human intelligence devoted to their use, preparation or manufacture.

A great deal of wealth, of course, comes out of mines and forests. But that is small, indeed, compared with what THE FARMER GETS OUT OF THE GROUND, AND BY THE BREEDING AND CARE OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

When the farmer is prosperous, the nation is prosperous. When the people in the cities shall think and vote intelligently to protect the farmer's interest they will vote to protect themselves.

Dwellers in cities forget the farmer very often, but they wouldn't forget him for a second if he suddenly ceased to exist or gave up his difficult work. The egg and the bacon on your plate in the morning ought to remind you of the farmer. Your meats and your vegetables at noon come from him. The wool in your clothing he shears for you. All the various kinds of breakfast foods that you read about are manipulations of his products.

THE FARMER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT MAN IN THE COUNTRY TO US ALL. Whatever interferes with him interferes with us all. When the railroads rob him, they rob you.

All children rely upon the milk that the farmer sends to the city. When the Milk Trust gouges the farmer, discourages him, prevents his marketing the milk at a profit, it is not only the farmer that is cheated, BUT ALSO THE CITY CHILD, YOUR CHILD.

Every citizen in the country should feel personally and deeply interested in the welfare of the farmers. There should be an alliance, an understanding, sincere and permanent, between the voters of the city and of the country. The separation between the two, carefully fostered by railroads and cunning politicians, whom the railroads own, has been a great detriment to all classes, and to dwellers in cities even more than to the farmers. For it must be remembered that the farmer at least is to some extent master of his own destiny. If he can't sell things, HE CAN EAT THEM. He is more of a man, more of an independent American than any flat dweller in a crowded city street.

It is a fact which human beings are very slowly finding out that they are all partners. If you rob one member of a big partnership, all of the others must suffer. While people in the cities look on stupidly, imagining that the troubles of the farmers do not affect them, they are suffering as much as the farmers, or even more.

We call your attention to fact especially to the effect upon the farmers and upon YOU of our watered-stock, swindling-tariff railroad system.

The railroads are supposed to be great highways, facilitating in all possible ways the exchange of products among the people. As a matter of fact, they are more like Chinese walls than highways. Whoever has studied and realized their effect upon agriculture and upon well-being in America must realize that the actual dominating desire in their management is to get as quickly as possible the greatest amount of money for deficient service, without any thought whatever of the welfare of any great class—IN CITY OR COUNTRY.

You in the cities know how, in hot weather, children lack fruit, fresh vegetables and good, pure milk. You ought also to know that along every railroad track in the United States apples are rotting on the ground now, thousands and hundreds of thousands of barrels of them, because it doesn't pay the farmer to ship them to town at railroad rates.

In every garden vegetables go to decay. The farmer takes what he needs for himself and his family; RAILROAD RATES MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE TO SHIP THE REST AT A PROFIT, SO IT ISN'T WORTH PICKING.

Right near our biggest cities, twenty-five, thirty miles out, the farmers manage in a primitive way to defeat the railroads by carting their vegetables to town by horse-power. What an outrageous thing it is that in these days of steam and electricity great cities should be fed by farmers still relying upon horses for their traction power, because railroads haven't the brains, energy, or public spirit, to organize transportation for them. Millions of people eat vegetables that are stale, picked twenty-four hours, or forty-eight hours or more before they reach the market, and hauled over dusty roads in farm wagons.

And this nearly a hundred years after the invention of the steam railway, Every farm along a railroad track represents anxiety to the farmer, a profit always doubtful, small at best. IT REPRESENTS A BIG, A POSITIVE PROFIT TO THE RAILROAD INVARIABLY. The farmer plants, ploughs, cultivates, harvests and worries, and in the end he hardly has enough for the seed and the new ploughs and the other Trust products for the next year. Whether times are good or bad, prices high or low, THE RAILROAD ALWAYS GETS ITS POUND OF FLESH.

The territory is opened up, the railroad is built. In a very short time the railroad owners have made their millions, tens of millions, every dollar of it out of the farmers and workers along that railroad, and those farmers and workers remain poor.

The worst feature of railroad extortion is the very fact that it causes stagnation of wealth AND PREVENTS DISTRIBUTION.

The children that die for lack of pure milk in the cities could be kept alive and healthy WITH THE MILK THAT IS FED TO HOGS BECAUSE IT DOESN'T PAY TO SHIP IT TO THE CHILDREN.

The expense of shipping, and of handling, cuts down the supply, and this enables a few manipulators TO KEEP UP THE PRICE. The railroads themselves are sufferers, although they are too blind to realize it. Their prosperity depends upon the farmer's energy in shipping, and upon the ability of the public to consume. Yet their constant efforts, or at least the result of their shortsighted policy, "all the traffic will bear," is to keep down distribution, minimize the amount of wealth, transported throughout the country. It is natural enough, perhaps, that they should in their narrow-minded way oppose the canals that would be a relief to overcrowded traffic. When the Erie Railroad was shown the other day to be paying a certain man a salary of ten thousand dollars a year to fight against canal improvements there was nothing astonishing about that. But it is astonishing that the railroads cannot see the importance of building themselves up through increased business rather than choking production with excessive tariffs.

If the railroads cannot see this the people themselves should see it.

You people who live in the cities should realize that you are separated from the fresh milk, the low-priced vegetables, BY THE RAILROADS.

You should realize that you are fed on cold storage food BY THE RAILROADS.

In some way those that live on the farms and feed the nation should enter closely into thinking, voting contact with those that live in the cities and depend upon the farmers.

The relationship must be brought about undoubtedly by the newspapers, and hence those occasional articles on farmers' problems that we publish here. We wish that the editors of newspapers throughout the country, of farmers' newspapers especially, would take up in their own way and more ably this question of getting the voters of the flat house and the farm to think, voting and law-making together. As long as they can be kept apart, as long as they feel that their interests are different, the various intelligent individuals, railroad officials, middle men, etc., will continue to exploit them.

If a man owned a garden managed by an intelligent gardener, he would not allow some selfish individual to keep that garden and his own family table apart. Yet the people of the United States, owning this beautiful garden, cultivated by able and intelligent farmers, allow the fruitful fields and the tables of the people to be separated by a high railroad wall and extortionate charges.

There should be intelligence enough in the country to overcome this. It has got to be overcome by voting; it must be overcome by citizens that will make laws to protect themselves and insist upon the laws being applied.

LEADERS

Disturbing Stories of Uprising

20 DECLARE FAITHFULNESS
Congressman O'Connell States

BUNTON STILL "WITH HIM"
Logan Declares Ward 14 Loyal

A MAJORITY of the Democratic ward leaders of the city last night came out with endorsements of Mayor Fitzgerald for re-election and re-election. The action was taken at the urgent request of the Mayor's friends in the several wards of the city. The effect of the published stories of the dissatisfaction of of the administration, made at the Quincy House meeting on Thursday by the ward leaders, and the statement credited to a prominent Democratic member of the Finance Commission that prominent Democrats were prepared to call upon Mayor Fitzgerald to decline a renomination, in the interests of Democratic success,

Up to midnight President William F. McClellan of the Democratic City Committee had received replies from about twenty of the twenty-five ward committee chairmen. The majority of them openly endorsed Mayor Blanton.

The repiles of the ward committee chairman will be given out by President H. O'Connell, who has been elected by the city committee himself. Issued a statement last night in which he denied that there was any severe criticism of Mayor Fitzgibbon's administration. He said he was admitting that some of the ward chairmen were not doing their jobs as well as they should, but that he was not at all satisfied with the patronage they were giving out.

City Commissioner Joseph F. O'Connell, the Ward 20 leader, also issued a statement last night in which he said that he was best of feeling existed between himself and the other ward chairmen, and that there was no revolt against the Mayor in Ward 20.

Chairman William Buntin of the Ward 20 Ward Citizens' Committee, which has been in the vanguard of the administration Thursday, was one of the first to respond to the charges of the Mayor. To a Houston American reporter last night Chairman Buntin said:

Buntin "With Him."

"Whatever differences our committee has had with Mayor Fitzgerald, they have not estranged us. We are with him now and always have been."

President McClellan's statement was as follows:

"I am very much surprised at the statements which have appeared in the newspapers the last few days purporting to give to the Mayor made at the meeting of ward alumni held the other day. The stories are not true. The meeting, which lasted until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, was one of the most pleasant that I have ever participated in. In fact, Hon. James Donovan told me after the close of the meeting that it was one of the most profitable ones.

It is true of a large number of the former peace protesters that they are not satisfied with the results of the peace process. In fact, many of them have given their wards a word of warning that they have never been so angry as all of the time. The nation has been satisfied.

McClellan's Plaudits.

"During the entire day I have received telephone calls, and many of the ward chairmen have talked with me personally, all in regard to my making a protest against the newspaper reports. I do not know of a single ward chairman in Boston to day who is against the resignation of Mayor Fitzgerald, and I am in touch with all of them. Mayor Fitzgerald will,

In my judgment, he unanimously re-hominate and re-elected by a substantial vote. This is as it should be. No man has ever given the time and attention to the suffering of humanity that the present Mayor has. The Finance Commission is in his own creation, and if its members perform their work in a fair and impartial manner, its findings will be of great advantage to the city, and the credit for this must revert to Mayor Fitzgerald. It is good that Mayor Fitzgerald has been polished by his untiring activity in the city's interest as well as by the close relationship which he has maintained with all sections of the city, will be manifested by the tremendous vote that he will get on election day."

"False" O'Connell.

Congressman O'Connell wrote to the American yesterday as follows:

"Editor, Boston American.
 "Sir: My attention has been called to articles published in several of the Boston morning newspapers of September 14th, in which it has been stated that there was an open revolt in Ward 20 due to a disagree-

I have no doubt that the great benefits we have derived from the use of the microscope in work of the plant and animal sciences, especially in view of the fundamental nature of the material compared to that which I know most of you to be conversant with, is due to the use of the microscope in the study of the structure of the protoplasm.

Many years ago, the microscope was one of the most important instruments in the laboratory of the biologist. It was the only instrument that could be used to study the structure of the protoplasm.

The past week has been a busy one in Cambridge political circles. URGE OSGOOD AS MELLE-SULLIVAN LEAGUE CANDIDATE Lowell Voters Turn to Independence Leader as Advocate of Political Reform.

Lowell, Sept. 14.—Being far from satisfied with the candidates for Senator, put forward in the eighth Middlesex district by the Democrats and Republicans, a large number of voters have asked the Independent League of this city to nominate William N. Osgood.

Mr. Osgood is one of the state leaders of the Independent League, and has been active in the State, was a candidate for Secretary of the State on the Wm. P. Russell ticket, and has for years been foremost in advocating the fighting for political reforms.

The Republican candidate for Senator will probably be one of the best known in the State, and the Independent League will be in a position to make a strong showing in the State.

There was a big leaving away from a year ago and thousands of Republicans voted for John H. Moran, who was defeated at the polls mainly through the treacherous work done by the Independent League who are for corruption first, party last and for the people never.

Dispute Over Plus Sign.

The dispute over the plus and minus signs started at the time of the first meeting for the week ago Wednesday morning. The plus sign was used by the Independent League, and the minus sign was used by the Republican faction.

Quincy Can Reach Many.

But this time with our own hands we will reach many more of the people.

More Than Third Party Fight.

Mr. Moran's intentions have been to control the party and to control the party.

Criticism Gains Appearances.

A great deal of the Republican opposition to Governor Guild is due to charges that he has not kept faith altogether.

his car was placed here de combat. Bald-and the dust rising, Baldwin swung from side to side, holding a hand over his into the home stretch, he exerted every ounce of steam pressure possessed by the

The record had been lowered and greater attention was paid to the second round. Cliff Hargrett, however, was down and out and so far as competitive work was concerned he was out of the picture. The second round, Baldwin, however, came out for the second heat and said that he would try and get a better time. He was told to get a good start, to get going and when given the signal was certainly cutting out a faster time than previous years. When the sunlit path on the bank stretch Baldwin was seen to disappear. He picked up his frame once on the bank and was seen to be in the water and covered his head all over the water. This work, together with the capturing of the 50 mile record for the track by a team in the Corbin air-cooled car, proved to be two of the speed events of the race season. The Krazy Kite Automobile Association, which had, owing to weather conditions, been postponed three, and in striking contrast to a postponed meet, it was considered as a success. True it is that accidents placed Hask and Marrell out of the race and thus their attempts to set a new record were abandoned. But from their standpoint the results were excellent.

to a position to go with either the favored or unfavored group. For the last two years the White Resources have been as limited as the unfavored show, but this year it was deemed advisable to exhibit with the favored cast.

The Detroit got several, while the American, losing all the way in her native city withdrew from the race and the floor was cleared for the Corbin.

With this event in recent time, it is no longer the fact that the Corbin is the best offered by the "Universalists" there. This is the latest evidence for the fact that the Corbin is the best offered by the "Universalists" there.

The race resulting in the Corbin's victory is the result of the Corbin's victory in the race.

COMMENTS BY THE PRESS ON WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST'S LABOR DAY SPEECH

Praise for Doctrine That is Wise, Temperate and Right is Keynote of Criticism Throughout Country

STURDY AMERICAN SENTIMENT IS INDORSED

Labor Delegates and Speakers at the Jamestown Fair on Labor Day

"Every Citizen Should Arry Its Principles," Declares Southern Critic.

THE OPPOSITION PRESS

Faithful Ones, G. M. Hearst, Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST'S speech on Labor Day at the Jamestown Exposition has been the subject of wide spread criticism and commendation in the press of the United States. In view of this editorial comment the "Sun" has obtained an interview with Mr. Hearst, in which he has explained his attitude toward the subject of the day.

"Chevalier of Industry Is Also in Evidence."

From the Concord Journal, Concord, N. H. Mr. Hearst is right in calling attention to the fact that the country is not a democracy in the sense that it is often supposed to be. It is a democracy in the sense that it is a country where every man has a right to be heard, and where every man has a right to be heard.

Conservatives Praise Its Reasonableness

From the Springfield Mass. Daily Republic. The Jamestown speech of William Randolph Hearst receives praise from conservative circles. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

"Hearst as a Moderate," as Seen in Buffalo

The Buffalo Courier says that Mr. Hearst's speech was a masterpiece of moderation. It was a speech that was full of common sense and it was a speech that was full of common sense.

Every Citizen Should Apply Its Principles

From the Rhinecland, Va. Times-Dispatch. In the main Mr. Hearst's address is an admirable statement of the principles of the American people. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

Should be Judged by Own Words, Says Editor.

From the Portsmouth Free Press. The speech of Mr. Hearst at Jamestown is a masterpiece of moderation. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

In the centre of the front row are shown William Randolph Hearst, Harry St. George Tucker, president of the Jamestown Exposition, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Speech Expressed Views Have Always Entertained," Says Mr. Hearst

Below is an Interview Given to the New York Times by William Randolph Hearst.

MR. HEARST, will you kindly elaborate the ideas contained in your Jamestown speech? Will you explain more fully just what you intended to convey in that speech?

I do not know that I can elaborate on that speech very much. I have little to add to it and nothing to withdraw from it. It expresses my views exactly, and expresses them in a way that is as plain as day. I have no regrets about it. I believe it is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

I believe that the situation in San Francisco justified an increase in wages there, and before the request came from my employees I voluntarily increased the wages of everyone a dollar a day to meet the increased cost of living in that city. I believe that the distribution of wealth through good wages is of benefit to the whole community and to every business man, and that I, as a newspaper man, am not averse to the general principle of all the citizens and of all the business men. I believe in cooperation between employer and employee, and in the distribution of wealth through good wages.

"Mr. Hearst's Views Are, in the Main, Sound"

From the Boston Herald. The speech of Mr. Hearst at Jamestown is a masterpiece of moderation. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

Prejudice Challenged to Pick Flaw in Speech

The Boston Herald challenges the speech of Mr. Hearst at Jamestown. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

that combination for increased production is beneficial. Let me illustrate by example the difference between beneficial and harmful combinations. I have eight newspapers in different cities, operating in harmony. This is a combination of a certain kind, but it is a combination that is beneficial to the public as well as to me. The features and various attractions that are secured for their readers are reproduced in all the others. By using the combined capital of eight papers I can secure more for their readers than if I should pay for one paper alone. Is not combination of that kind for the benefit of the public?

If, on the other hand, instead of having eight papers in different cities, I should control all of the papers in some one city, I would then establish a monopoly. If I used that monopoly to give the readers less and less for their money, knowing that there was no competition in which they could find relief, would I not then furnish an example of combination that is harmful to the public? The distinction is clear.

I believe in organization of workmen for proper disposal of their power for better purposes, and organization of capital for proper purposes. The evil lies, not in the organization, but in the misuse to which the power of organization may be put. To say that corporate wealth is always used for the good of the community is false and foolish; to say that every corporation or combination of capital is ever used for the benefit of the community is not more radical, it is ridiculous. As I said in my speech, there should be intelligent discrimination between what is good and what is bad in organization. No sensible man, if he had a conscience, would allow his own selfishness to blind him to the fact that the organization of workmen for proper disposal of their power is a good thing, and the organization of capital for proper purposes is a good thing.

Q.—But your address is considered a very conservative utterance, and it is claimed that it indicates a change in your attitude. In how far is that true?

A.—I would say that the chief fault in my speech is that it contains very little that I have not said before. I have said many times before that I believe in the right of every man to a fair wage, and I have said many times before that I believe in the right of every man to a fair wage. I have said many times before that I believe in the right of every man to a fair wage, and I have said many times before that I believe in the right of every man to a fair wage.

opportunity to all, and which have resulted in the astonishing development of the past century of ours. A great man I made a speech on Labor Day at Jamestown, and it was exactly the same reception that my Jamestown speech met with.

Take the New York Sun, for instance. It is a conservative paper, and it is a conservative paper. It is a paper that is full of common sense and it is a paper that is full of common sense. It is a paper that is full of common sense and it is a paper that is full of common sense.

"Mr. Hearst's address that his programme was not socialism, radicalism or extreme of any kind, but Americanism, his declaration that he did not believe in private ownership of public property nor in public ownership of private property, his approval of tariff revision with due regard to the stability of business interests, and a perpetuation of the property on which we all depend, and similar statements that might have been uttered by any man in the country, were parts of the speech that I have heard. I have heard it all, and I have heard it all, and I have heard it all."

Exactly one year ago, after my Syracuse speech, the Tribune printed a similar editorial under the heading, "Hearst Conservative," and said in that editorial a year ago:

"It is, of course, still devoted to the rights of the people. It is still a paper that is full of common sense and it is a paper that is full of common sense. It is a paper that is full of common sense and it is a paper that is full of common sense."

the speech of Mr. Hearst at Jamestown is a masterpiece of moderation. It is a speech that is full of common sense and it is a speech that is full of common sense.

Talks on Teeth

Will These Teeth Last?

THE question which is asked by thousands of people is: "Will the teeth last?" The answer is: "It depends on the care which is given to them." The teeth are the most important part of the human body, and they are the only part which is not replaced. If they are not properly cared for, they will become weak and decayed, and will eventually fall out. The teeth are the foundation of the human body, and they are the only part which is not replaced. BONAPARTE FORCED TO QUIT CABINET BECAUSE OF WAR ON TRUSTS?

DISGUSTED AT IMMUNITY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—At resignation in the President's hands if evidence is to be placed in future current about the capital night.

That Bonaparte has merely been willing to retire with a minimum of embarrassment to himself and the administration is the very general impression. His resignation is said to be the result of a personal and open revival of the administration policy in its determination to make valuable war upon trusts.
The standard issue is said to be that the attorney general is a generalist and a politician, and that he is not a lawyer.
